Foreword

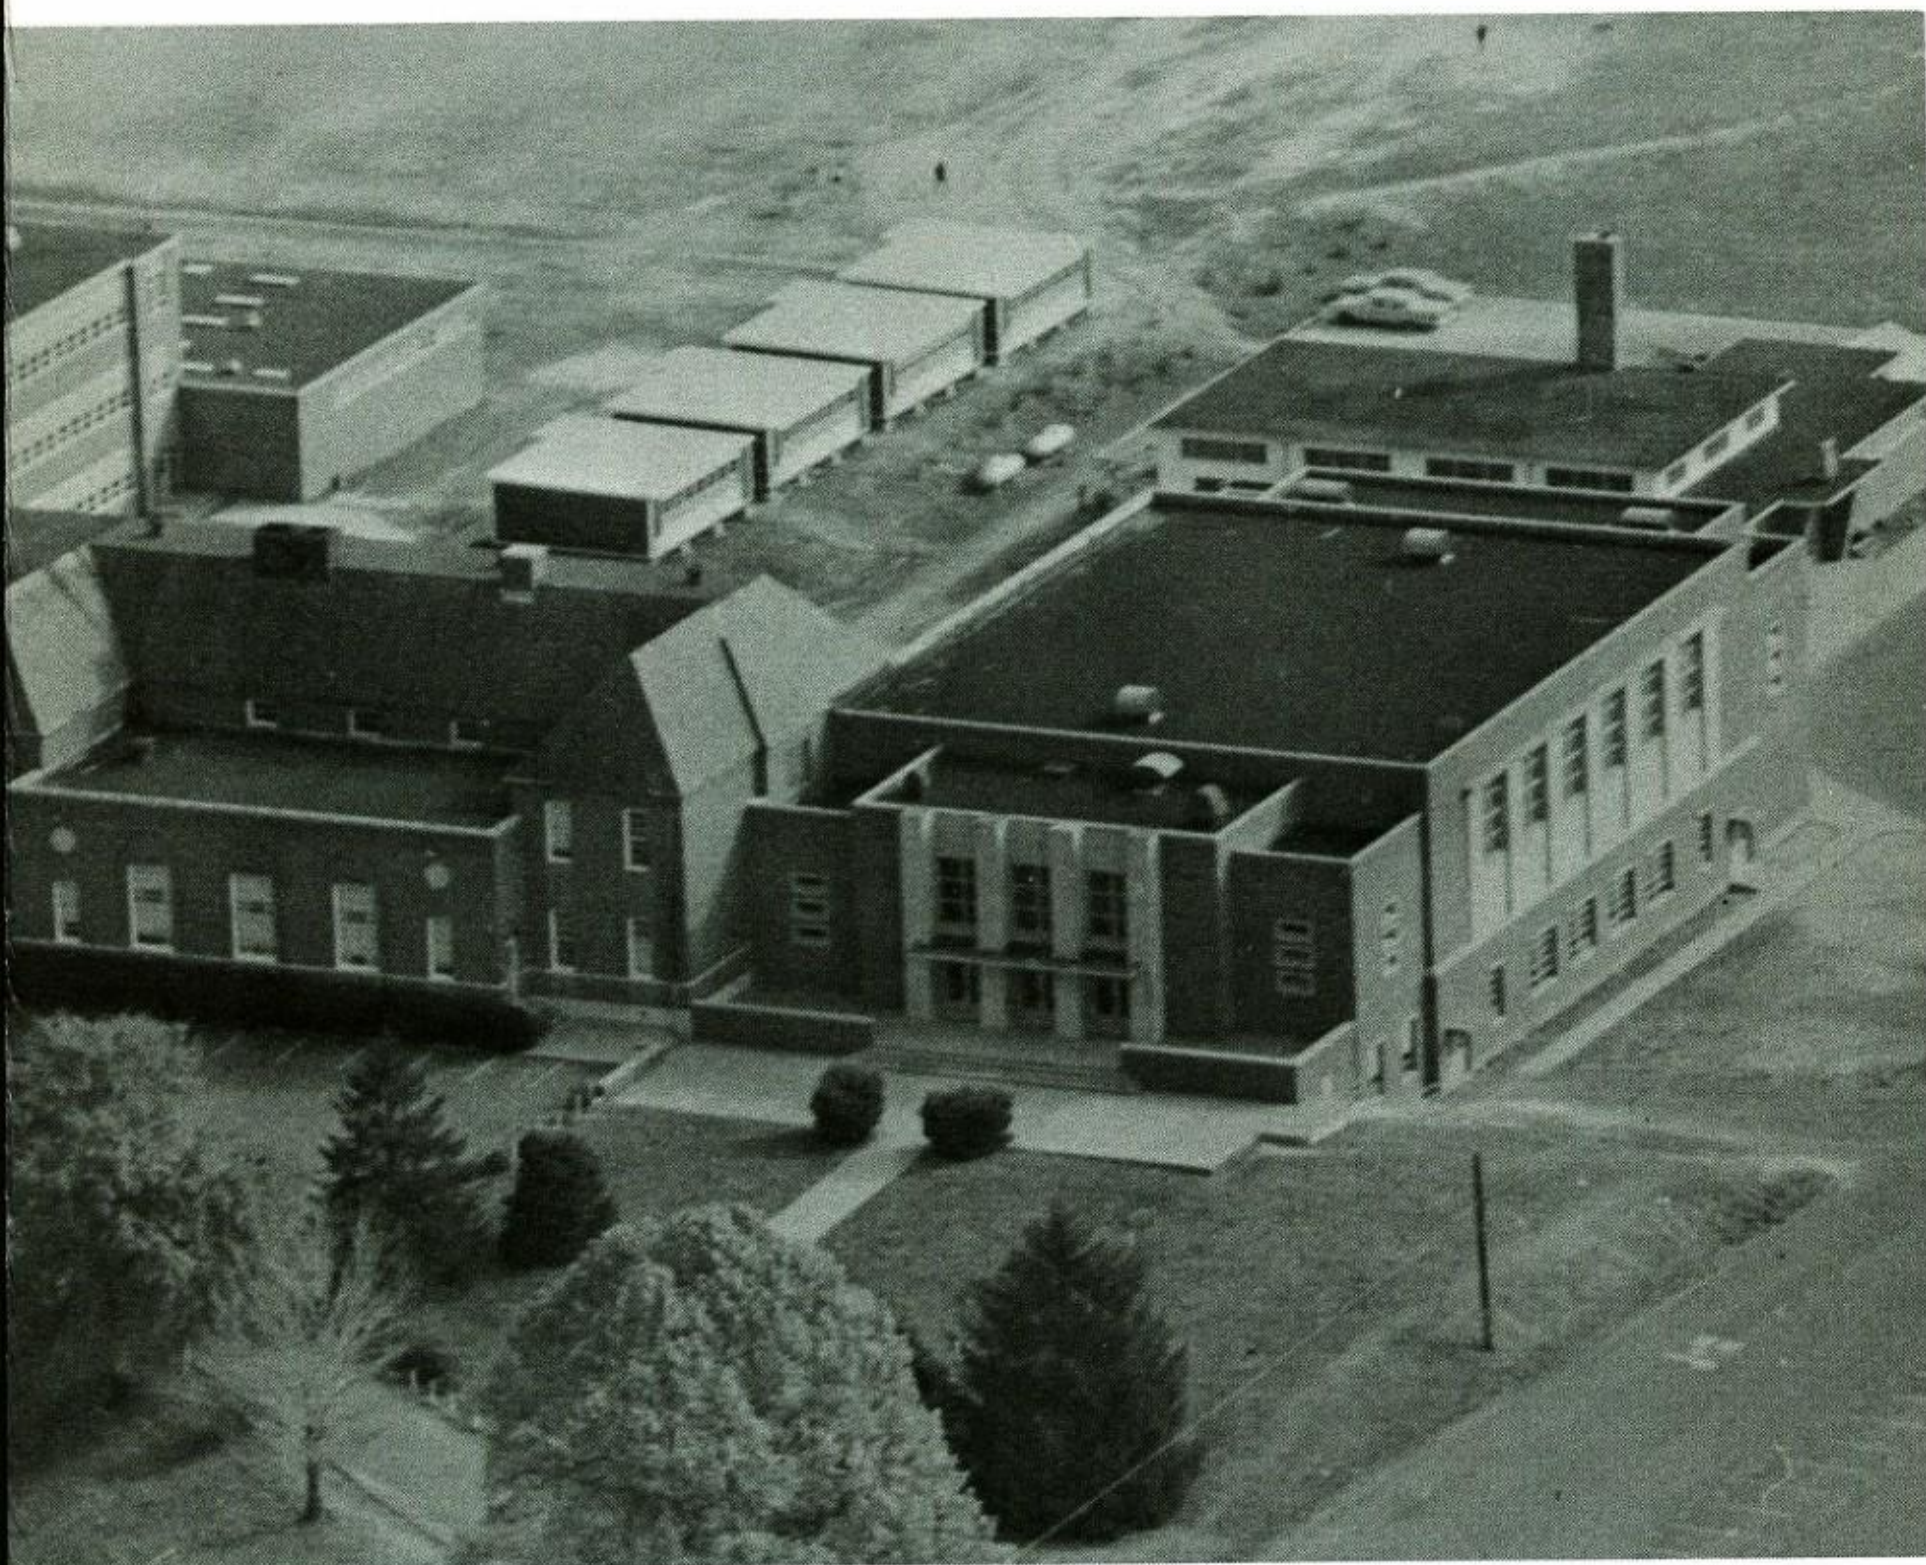

We on the Echoes staff have tried to capture with words and pictures the school year. We have failed as all men must fail, because time is relentless: it allows no captive moments.

Men know that time will not stop, and yet they cherish memories and relive yesterdays. Why? Because "memory is a kind of accomplishment . . ."

The descent beckons
as the ascent beckoned.
Memory is a kind
of accomplishment,
a sort of renewal
even
an initiation, since the spaces it opens are new places
inhabited by hordes
heretofore unrealized,
of new kinds—
since their movements are toward new objectives (even though formerly they were abandoned).

NO DEFEAT is made up entirely of defeat—since the world it opens is always a place formerly unsuspected. A world lost,
a world unsuspected,
beckons to new places
and no whiteness (lost) is so white as the memory
of whiteness

WITH EVENING, love wakens
though its shadows
which are alive by reason of the sun shining—
grown sleepy now and drop away
from desire . . .

LOVE WITHOUT shadows stirs now beginning to awaken
as night
advances . . .

The Echoes Staff Pays Tribute to F. Markham Wingate.

1967 marks Mr. Wingate's twentieth year as Principal of Southern High. His has been a demanding office, one which he has fulfilled with honor and skill. His can be a rewarding office, too, if and only if we, his students, serve ourselves and our world as valuable human beings.

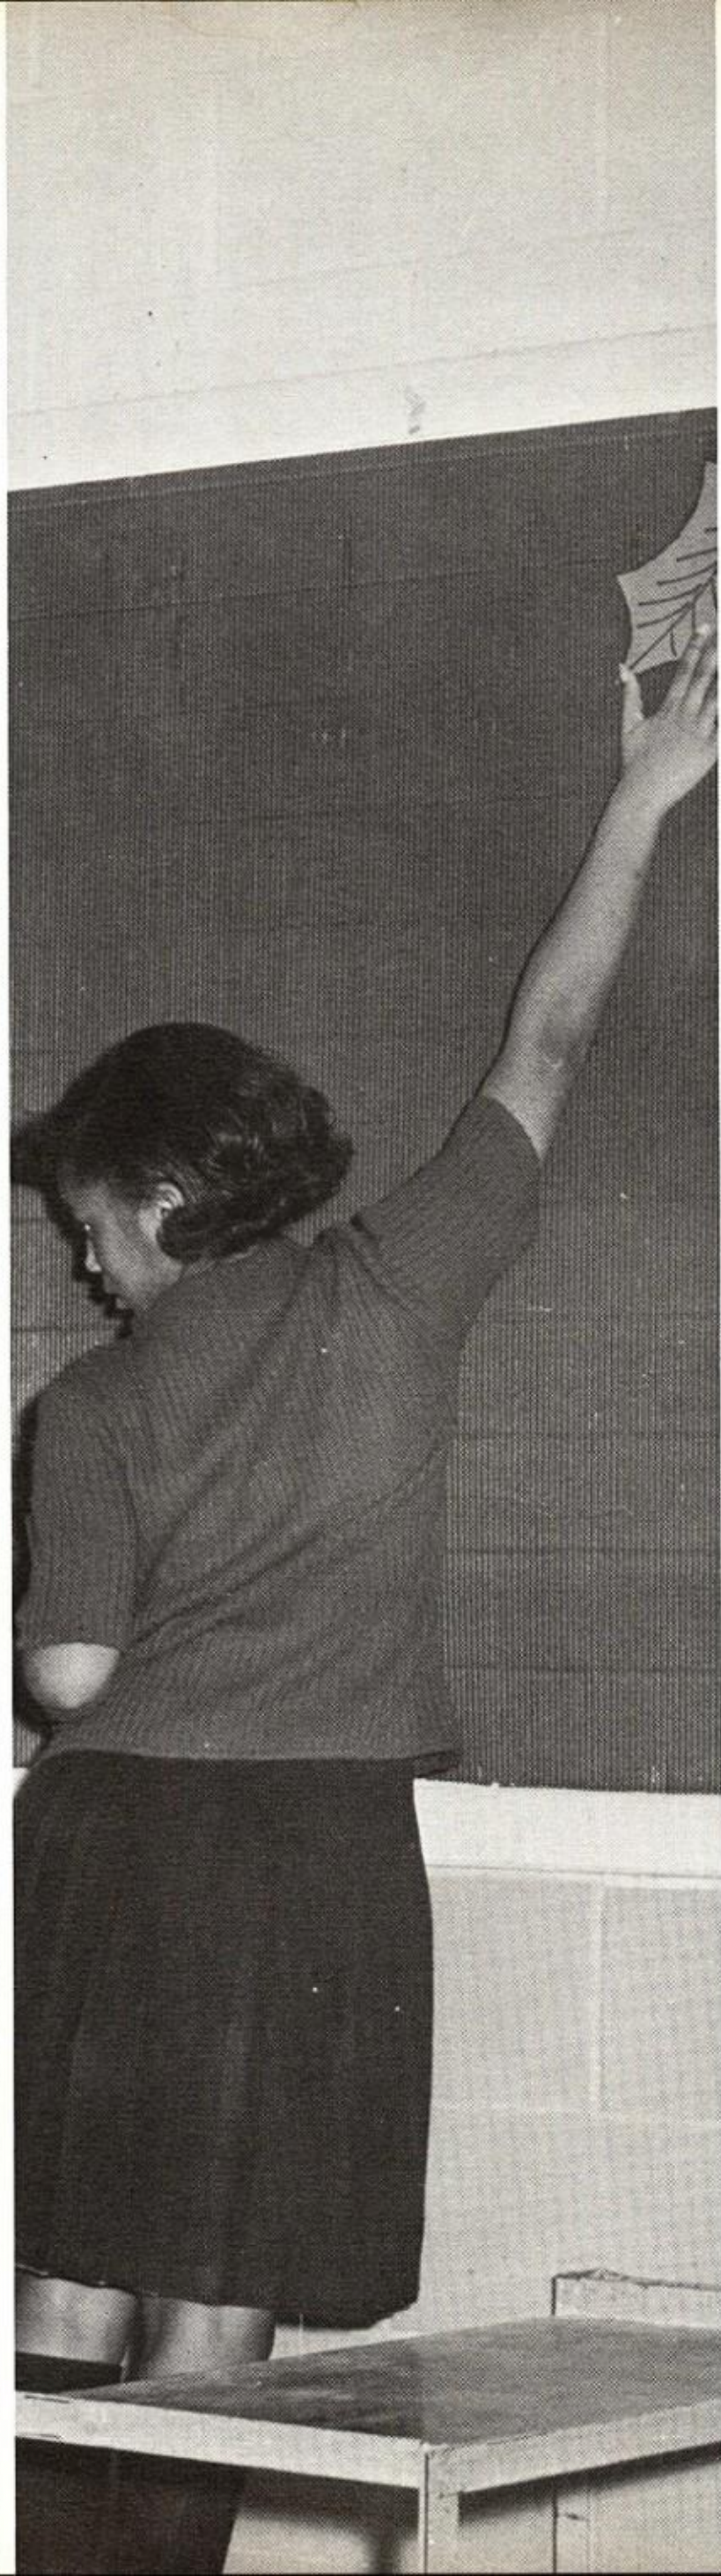

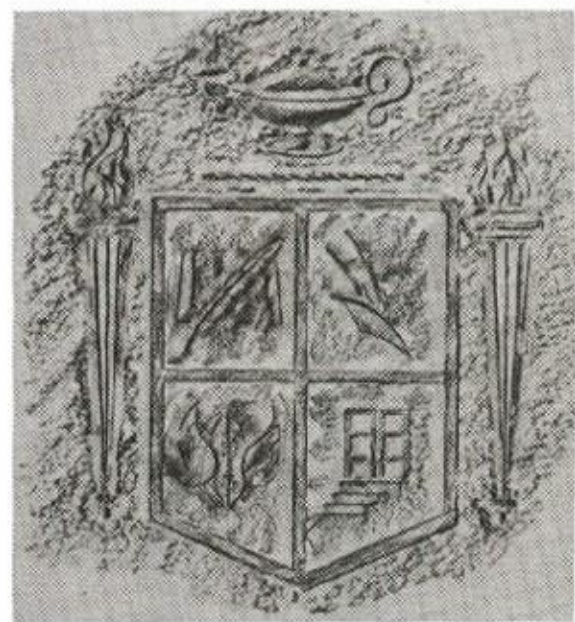

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Abraham Lincoln is credited with the statement that "God must love the common people, he made so many of them". This simple and obvious observation is said to have drawn knowing smiles from the would-be Eastern intellectuals of that day who regarded Lincoln as a dull and boorish backwoodsman. It would be fair to state that these gentlemen underestimated the depth and complexity of perception that this backwood's diamond brought to bear upon the most simple and elemental subjects.

It is true that our educational system needs to take a good look at its total program. Our present preoccupation with the pursuit of excellence is indeed a noble objective. It would be a pity to allow our unpolished diamonds to be plowed under by an unthinking machine directed by superficial intellectuality that is too dainty to dig its hands into the good, clean earth of everyday existence.

ACADEMICS

Southern Prepares Students for the Future

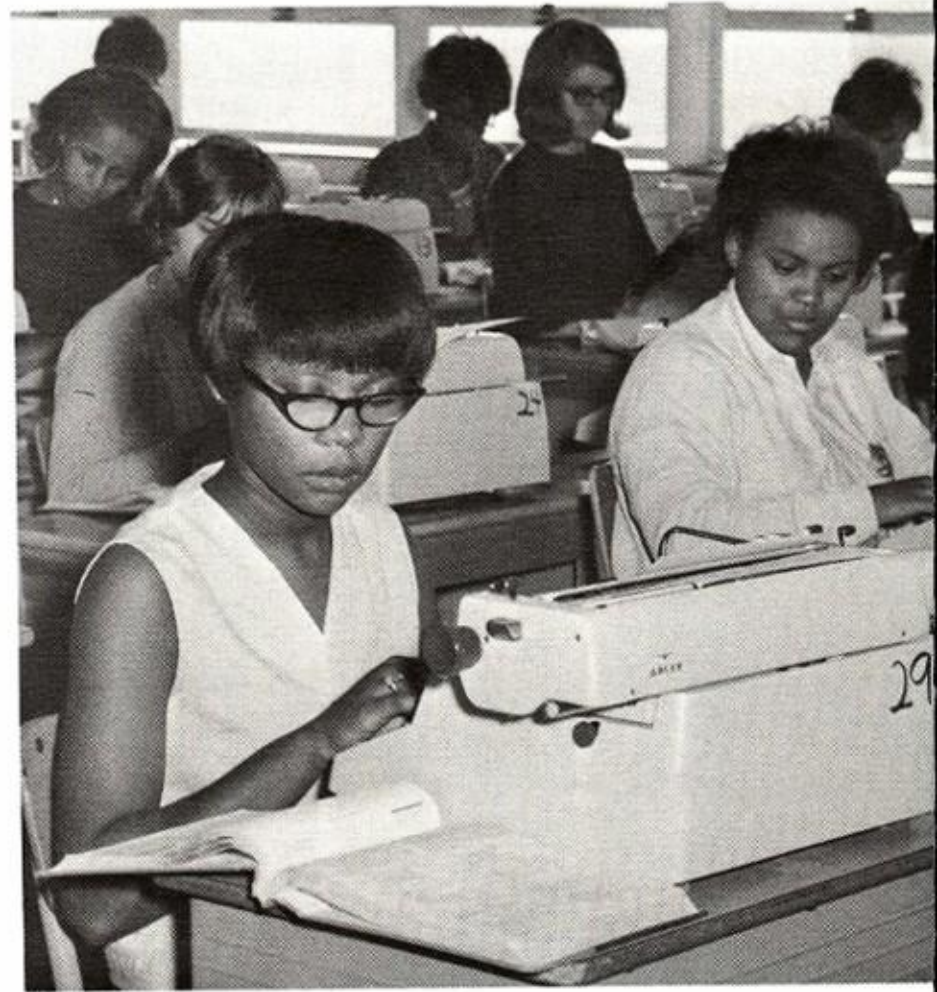

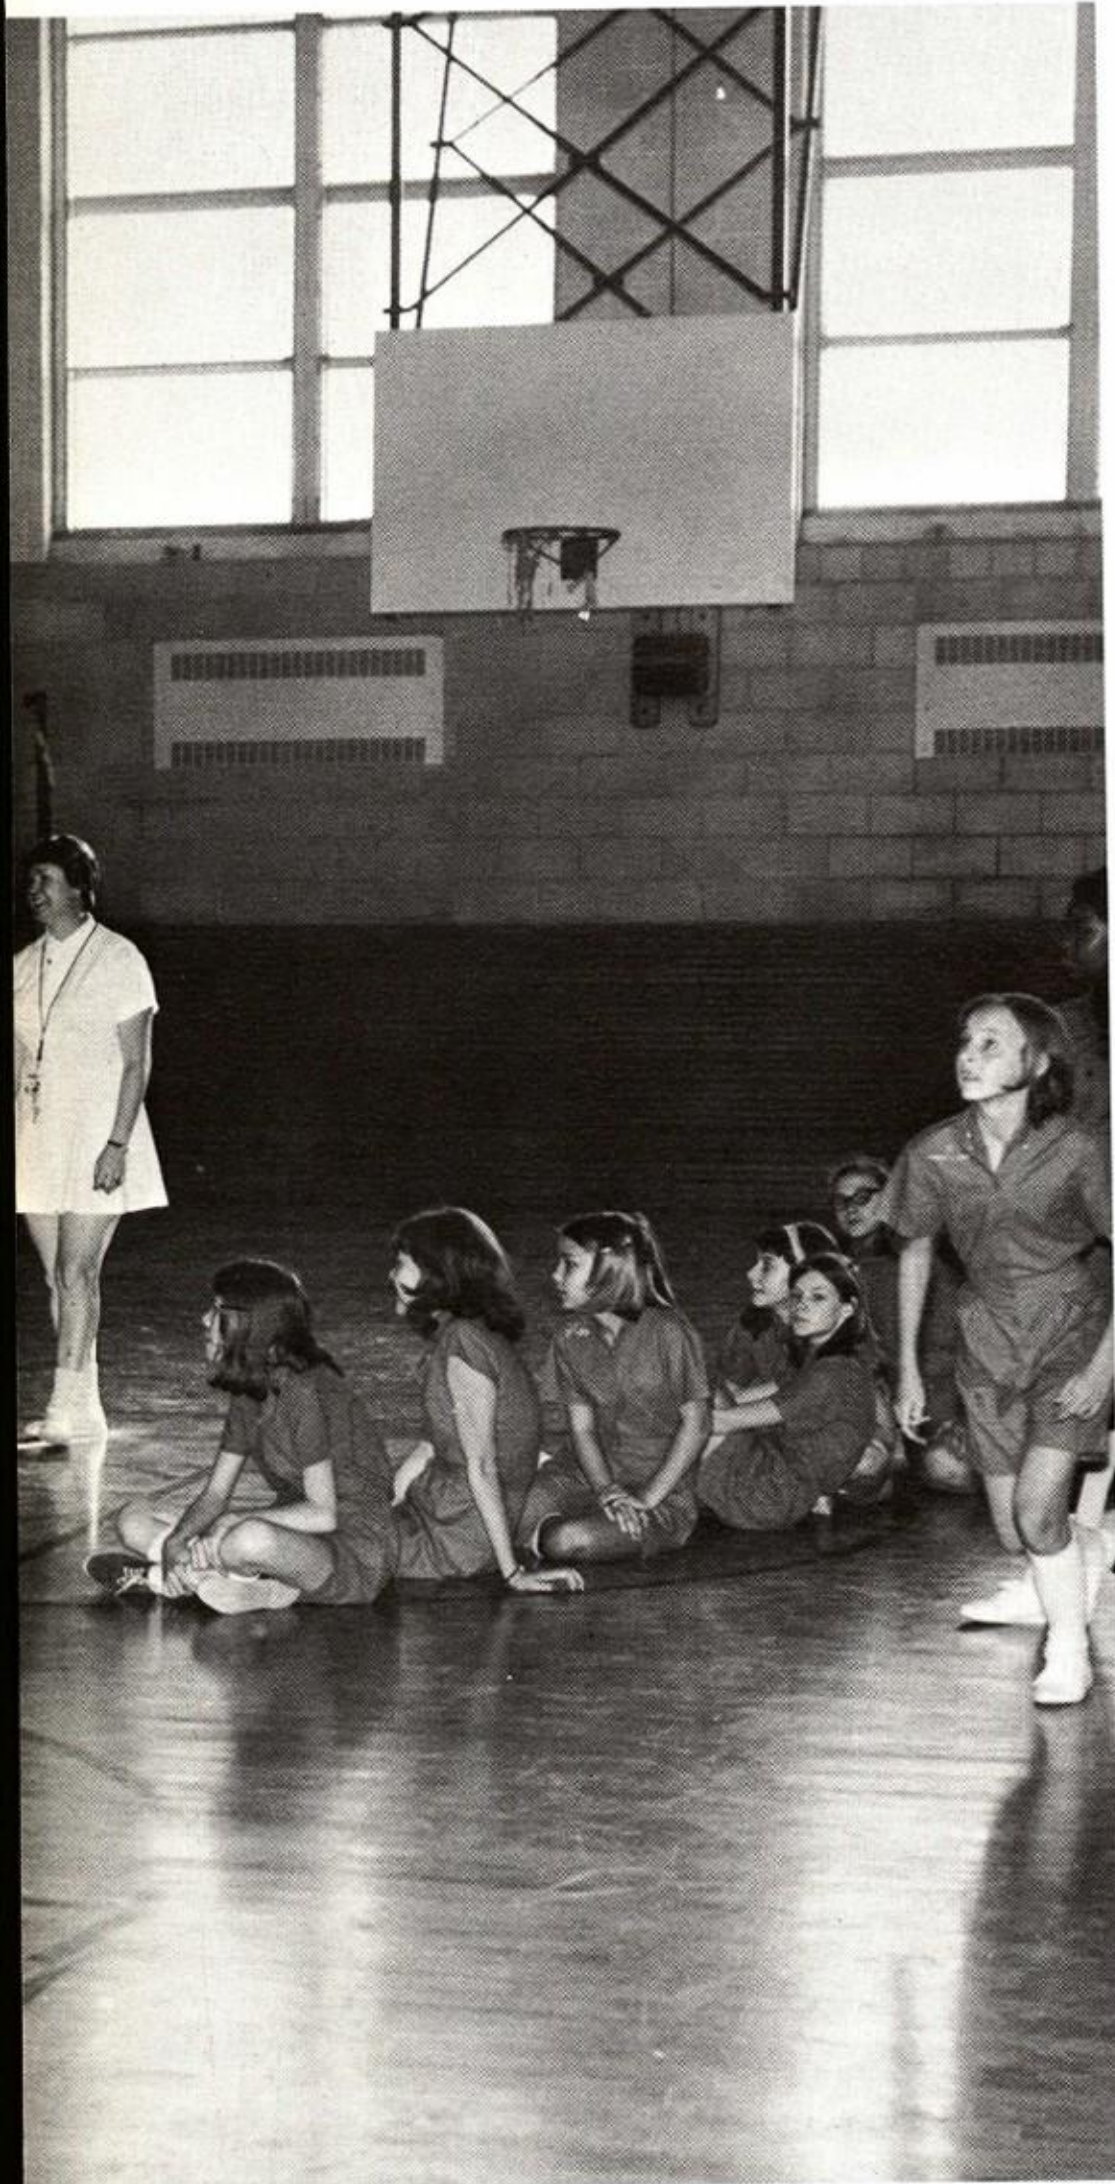

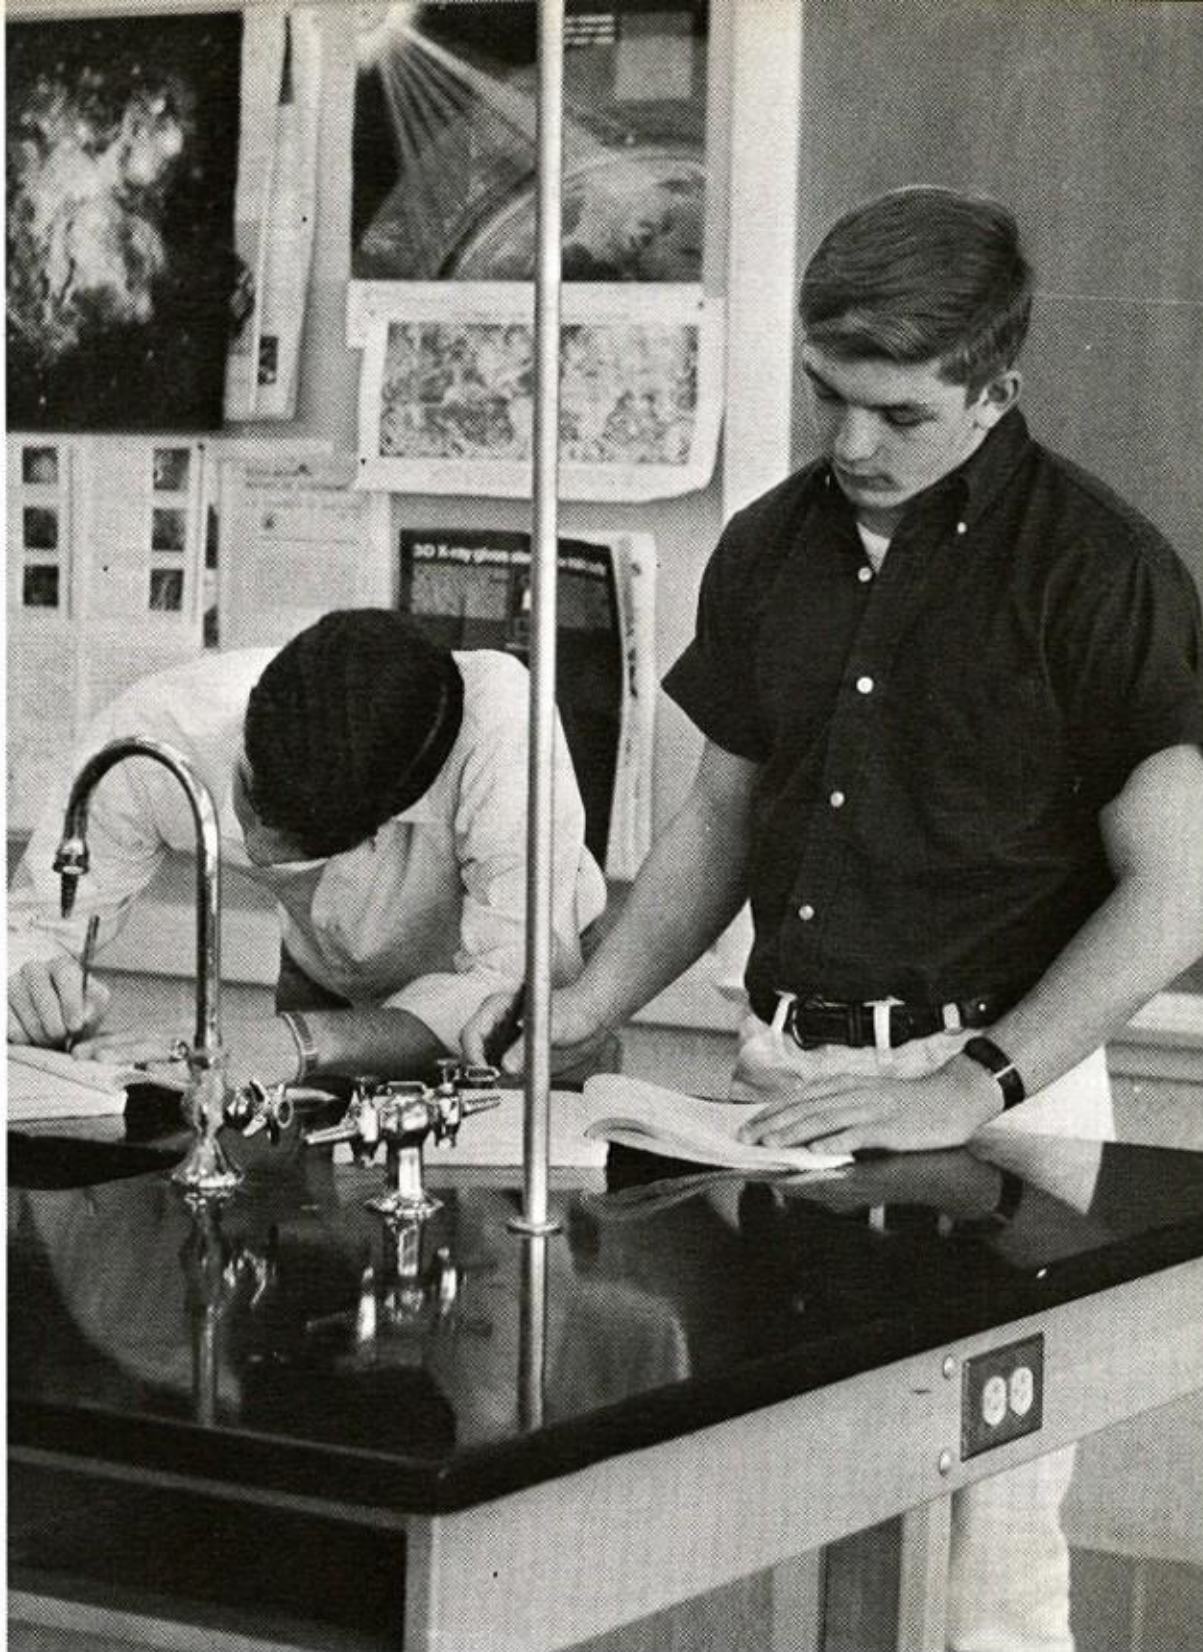

The student's education is built on a foundation of four main subjects—English, Mathematics, Social Science, and Physical and Biological Sciences. Through these studies, the pupil discovers the literary art-science of creativity-communication; the concrete, yet abstract, world of numbers; the mysteries of the earth and its life; and the concepts of man in space and time.

Southern Students Choose a Path

Seventh and Eighth graders study a broad curriculum to give them a solid base for their high school years. In high school four main programs are offered: Academic, for college preparation; Commercial, for job training; General, for a broad curriculum; and Agriculture, for farm training.

Adaptive Education Meets the Needs of All Students

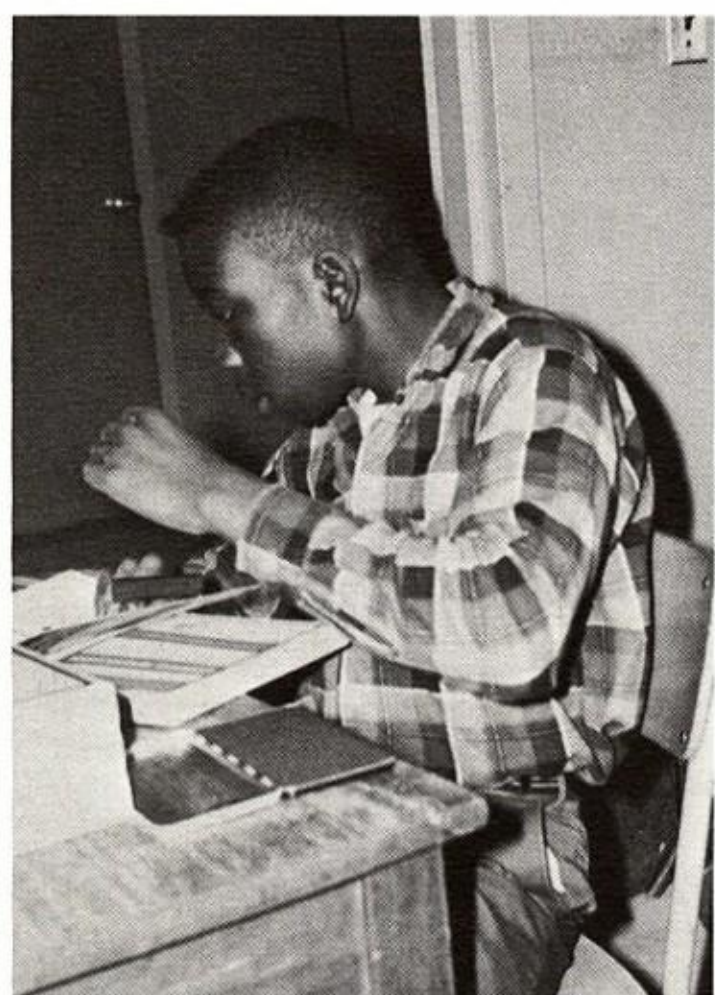

Special Education classes are designed to give students special help and training in cafeteria, custodial, and other work.

Distributive Education allows students to gain experience in actual sales positions while in school through a work-study program.

Remedial Reading is available through Title I of the Federal Aid-to-Education Act. Youngsters whose academic difficulties are closely related with reading problems are given special help.

National Merit Scholarship Finalists

The Class of '67 boasts two students who have demonstrated outstanding scholastic ability in being awarded the status of finalist in the National Merit Scholarship program. Regina Gross, who participated in a special program for superior Negro students, and Patricia Hartge were chosen on the basis of their excellent scores on the qualifying examination. This tremendous honor is shared with only one half of one per cent of all high school seniors. Finalists are eligible for scholarships to the college of their choice.

THE DESCENT

and without accomplishment

realizes a new awakening:

a descent follows,

endless and indestructible . . .
